COMTEX PORTABLE GENERATOR

The COMTEX portable generator is capable of running either production plant at full capacity and can be easily moved between facilities if needed. This generator will be kept in Ashland following initial operations beginning later this year.

BEST PRACTICES FOR SURGICAL ATTIRE LAUNDERING

The American Journal of Infection Control states that “home laundering has been found to be insufficient as compared to industrial laundering practices”, thereby placing your family and others at risk of the spread of infection when scrubs are worn home.

Health care accredited laundering offers a standardized alternate to home laundering that can reduce the contamination of scrub attire. As a result, COMTEX uses a FDA regulated disinfectant to process these scrubs to ensure the highest protection possible.

Health care accreditation of laundering facilities regulates the transport, handling, washing, drying and storage of soiled and contaminated textiles. Laundering parameters, such as water temperature, water-to-fabric ratio, cycle durations for washing and drying, and the use of detergents, are not standardized for home laundering.

The AORN “Guideline for Surgical Attire” states that surgical scrubs and other attire should be laundered by a health care-accredited facility, or disposable attire should be provided by the health care facility.

LEONARD STEAM TUNNEL

COMTEX is excited to announce that a steam tunnel used to release wrinkles and improve appearance of scrubs and other garments has been purchased for COMTEX Ashland. This investment in a second steam tunnel ensures a high quality product for ALL COMTEX customers serviced from both COMTEX Columbus and COMTEX Ashland. The pictures below (with and without the use of a steam tunnel) are an example of the quality impact the Steam Tunnel from Leonard Automatics can do for your staff and facility.

INTERNATIONAL ASSOCIATION FOR HEALTHCARE TEXTILE MANAGEMENT (IAHTM)

The CEO of COMTEX was honored at the recent IAHTM conference to be elected to an additional two (2) years as President of the Association. Mr. Noel has been a member of IAHTM since 1992 and served as both a Canadian Board member when managing Tilbury Laundry in British Columbia and an American member as CEO of COMTEX.
